Volunteer of the Year

Quota International of Bath has proudly selected one of its newest members, Jackie Crane, as the 2011 “volunteer of the year”.

On several occasions in the few months that she has been with us, Jackie has taken charge and organized various club activities. She successfully headed the county fair project where Quota members distributed free ear plugs to fair goers as they entered the grandstand during the Monster Truck show, tractor pull and demolition derby. She not only developed a work schedule, but also made informational signs about Quota, and decorative buckets to hold the ear plugs.

Jackie was the first to don a Halloween costume and sit outside the local K-Mart during a club sponsored bake sale in October. Her creativity was evident as she unveiled some novelty goodies like candy rats on a stick and goody bag hands. And, Jackie was there from set-up to clean-up!

One of the largest projects this club has undertaken is a clothing shed that the community uses to drop off unwanted clothes, linens, draperies, etc. We in turn, are paid for the items. However there are specifications as to the upkeep of the shed. At times the job can be very demanding, but Jackie helps to organize and maintain the shed at least once a week, and sometimes more.

We have found Jackie to be a true asset to the Quota club and to the community. We can only imagine how high this “Crane” will lift us in the future!

(Incidentally, Jackie was sponsored by member Pat McCarthy, our 2010 “Volunteer of the Year”!)
